

Parks & Recreation Office

The Exeter Parks & Recreation building at 32 Court Street was built in 1845 as the Court Street School. In 1959 it became the Community Center housing the Recreation Department, as it still does today.

The Office located at 32 Court Street has three meeting rooms available for community use. There are renters rules for all facility use that have been predetermined by the Board of Selectmen, which require a certificate of insurance from an individual or organization. Refer to the facility use form for specific guidelines regarding facility use.

The Parks and Recreation Department offers programs and activities throughout the year for all ages. Concerts, athletic camps, and other activities that are great for kids and fun for adults too are part of the Parks and Recreation mission.
